T. K. K. Liner to Turn Around at Nagasaki and Come Back on Korea's Schedule

If the T. K. K. steamer Persia Maru had arrived off port 42 minutes earlier last night she could have come in the instead of this morning, as she had 320 bags of mail from San Francisco on board. Mail steamers can receive pratique if they arrive at or before 9 p. m.

The steamer anchored at 9:42 last night, 6 days, 10 hours and 24 minutes from San Francisco. She docked at Pier 7 at 7:45 this morning and was due to steam for Yokohama at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Passengers brought to Honolulu were two stopovers, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Nicoll. Through passengers are 45 first-cabin and 212 steerage, of whom 23 are Hindus. One Russian is also in the steerage. Japanese steerage are 124 and Chinese 14. Through cargo is 2872 tons, general merchandise.

Among the through passengers are T. Domoto, head of the North American Mercantile Company; A. Jenks, an American mining man en route to Burma; J. Tanaka of the Yokohama Specie Bank, returning to Japan after eight years passed in Europe; G. C. Ferguson, an American leather man, going to Calcutta with his wife and family; K. Ichikawa, second assistant secretary of the Japanese consulate, San Francisco, returning to Japan on leave, and several others.

Capt. Y. Maki reported a pleasant voyage from the coast and said the Persia will conclude her voyage at Nagasaki, turning right around there and leaving Nagasaki November 20, taking the run of the Korea Maru, which was scheduled to leave Nagasaki that day, but will not leave until December.

The Persia ordinarily would go on to Hongkong from Nagasaki, but her trip has been cut short to permit her taking the Korea's original schedule. This will bring the Persia Maru back to Honolulu again from Yokohama on December 5, to leave Honolulu December 6 for San Francisco. On her way back to the Orient she will leave San Francisco December 20, as before announced, and omit Honolulu, going direct, arriving at Yokohama January 5. E. A. Seeley is the Persia's new purser this voyage. He was ordered to the Persia from the Siberia Maru 12 hours after the latter boat reached San Francisco. Seeley takes the place of J. B. Wheeler, who has left the Toyo Kisen Kaisha's employ. The Siberia's new purser when she comes here November 10 from San Francisco will be C. N. Ludvigsen, whose last sea job was freight clerk of the Tenyo.

HARBOR NOTES

The T. K. K. steamer Persia Maru brought 320 bags of mail this morning from San Francisco.

Next mail from Yokohama will arrive in the Pacific Mail liner Ecuador, expected Saturday or Sunday.

Wednesday the Matson steamer Matsushita left San Francisco for Honolulu. She will arrive Tuesday morning.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the American steamer Yucatan left for Yokohama and Nagasaki after taking bunkers here.

The Shell Oil tanker, Donax arrived from San Francisco last evening, entering port at 5:10 p. m. She took bunkers at Pier 17 and left at 9 o'clock this morning for the Orient.

Next mail from San Francisco will arrive Saturday in the Pacific Mail liner Venezuela. She will have two days' accumulation as she left Saturday, two days after the Persia Maru.

Coming here for bunkers, the North Pacific Steamship Company's freight steamer Yucatan, arrived from San Francisco Wednesday and docked at Pier 16. She is en route to the Orient.

Early this morning the Matson steamer Hyades entered port. She arrived at anchorage last night from San Francisco. The freighter is at Pier 20 discharging 4966 tons of cargo for Honolulu.

Arrival of the Matson steamer Lurline at San Francisco yesterday from Kahului is reported. She has gone on drydock for repairs to her damaged hull. The Lurline grounded off Makapuu Point October 18.

Customs Inspectors Gilbert McNeill and John Oliveira, also Examiner R. H. Benrose, returned from Hilo Tuesday on the Mauna Kea, after discharging the T. K. K. South American liner, the Anyo Maru's cargo at that port. The Anyo did not go to Kilauea wharf, but

Big Steamship Merger Has No Vessels Big Enough; Matson Boats Busy at S. F.

As regular as the falling of the leaves up around the Sound comes again the rumor of a steamship service from Seattle and Tacoma to the Islands.

This time it is the Tacoma Tribune of October 5 which gives the report. It says the newly organized Pacific Steamship Company, as the recent merger of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, the Pacific Navigation Company and the Alaska-Pacific Steamship Company (Admiral Line) is designated, may give Tacoma a new Hawaiian line, to take the place of the Matson Line's Puget Sound-Hawaiian service, withdrawn last spring on account of San Francisco freight competition and since retained on the San Francisco-Honolulu run.

Captain F. M. Edwards of the Matson steamer Manoa and Captain William M. Rind of the Hyades, when shown today the news story from the Tacoma paper, both said they doubt the new corporation has any vessels large enough to bring sufficient freight to the islands to make the service pay.

The Pacific Coast liner Congress, recently badly damaged by fire at sea, is a big boat but is needed in coastwise service and will resume its run as soon as repaired.

"We hear in San Francisco that the Matson Line will put the Hyades and Hilonian back in the Puget Sound service January 1," said Captain Rind this morning, "but so far no official announcement has been made."

"The Matson Navigation Company wrote us two or three weeks ago that it would give us 60 days' notice when it decided to put the Hilonian and Hyades back on the Sound run," said Manager J. H. Drew of Castle & Cooke's shipping department today.

"We have heard nothing since and with freight piling up worse than ever in San Francisco because of the Lurline accident the company certainly cannot afford to take the boats off if Honolulu is to be given adequate freight service to and from San Francisco."

How the Liner Congress Looked Burning From Funnels to Stern

Showing the San Francisco and Portland Steamship Company's liner Congress on fire off Coos Bay, with boats leaving the vessel, the above photograph gives an excellent idea of the big steamer's appearance when she neared the beach. The picture is taken from the Pacific Marine Review.

Shipping circles on the Pacific coast were highly startled by the burning of the Congress, the fire coming as it did right on the heels of a bad fire of the steamer Beaver of the San Francisco and Portland Steamship Company's fleet.

At the time it was decided that the fire could not be controlled, the Congress was about thirty miles to sea off Coos Bay and her captain, N. E. Cousins, turned her nose toward the beach and ran for it. Too much cannot be said for the behavior of the officers and crew of the Congress under the most trying circumstances, and the conduct of the passengers has also won high commendation.

The behavior of the engine and fire room crews was indeed quite remarkable, the chief engineer B. K. Martland, sticking to his post till he became unconscious from smoke suffocation.

One factor that contributed materially to the happy outcome of what might have been the worst catastrophe on the Pacific was the excellent boating arrangements on the gutted steamer. While the Congress was building her owners spared neither study or expense in making her lifeboat and handling equipment the best that could be secured, going considerably beyond the most stringent government requirements in this regard.

Also the stiffness of the Congress allowed of all the lifeboats on one side being lowered without heeling the ship far enough to interfere with the lowering of boats.

The removal of the Congress from the coasting trade will create a serious shortage in ships and while the vessel may be refitted this will take many months. The Pacific Coast Steamship Company was offered $2,200,000 for this vessel several months ago but refused this tempting price because it would be impossible to replace the ship for a long period owing to the congested condition of all the big shipyards.

The fire, so far as is known, started in one of the holds.

If not she will proceed to Mukilteo to load a cargo of phosphate for Japan.

In the absence of Collector of Customs Malcolm A. Franklin, who left yesterday on the Wilhelmina for New York, Deputy Collector Rayner Sharp is in charge of the custom house as acting collector. Collector Franklin will not return until January.

Two Japanese members of the crew of the coal steamer Amagisan Maru escaped from the vessel Monday night by sliding down a mooring line when the watchmen were not looking. The escaped men are K. Saruwatari, a sailor, and H. Tomita, a sailor's apprentice.

The treasury department has notified Dr. F. E. Trotter, chief quarantine officer, that it has approved the bid of Herman Muir for taking down the quarantine station flagpole, cutting off

MORE MEN THAN WOMEN HAVE APPENDICITIS

Surgeons state men are slightly more subject to appendicitis than women. Honolulu people should know that a few doses of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-ka, often relieve or prevent appendicitis. This mixture removes such surprising foul matter that ONE SPOONFUL relieves almost ANY CASE constipation, sour stomach or gas. The INSTANT, easy action of Adler-ka is surprising. At 5 o'clock this afternoon the Japanese steamer Asahi Maru is leaving for Manila and Yokohama. She arrived from New York via Balboa yesterday and took 350 tons of bunker coal from the Inter-Island at Pier 6.

BROKEN WATER PIPE FLOODS NUUANU ST.

Cold showers and boiled eggs were few and far between this morning in Nuuanu valley for the big 18-inch water main broke at the corner of Nuuanu and Kukuia streets at 11:30 last night and boded the district, and water had the turned off. All this morning Harry Murray had a gang of men working on the break and it was not till after 11 o'clock that it was finally repaired. The break was caused by a crack in the pipe, evidently there when it was laid.

Four persons were injured in a head-on collision between two automobiles at Yonkers.
